About This Game

New York, 2000...
...Without knowing how or why, Brian, a student on the verge of graduating from college, is attacked by Mafia gangsters. During his desperate getaway, in the company of a mysterious striptease dancer, he ends up meeting a wide range of unusual characters. But which ones are trying to help him and which ones are planning to blow his head off?
You will have to be very ingenious to figure it out, without forgetting that nobody is who they seem in this explosive mixture of murder, money, ambition, santeria rituals and deception...a whole lot of deception.

- Approximately 100 settings that are visually rich, containing 30 interactive characters.

- Characters with soft edges, real-time lighting and shading effects, camera changes, panoramic shots and more.

- High-quality stereo sound, an original soundtrack with over 24 songs.

- 3D characters with a cartoon look and high-impact visual features that include 2D and 3D in an unmatchable style.

The game is great. Artwork, sound, music, plot, puzzles - everything is top-class. There is one huge con, however : the mouseover text. Instead of hovering under a mouse cursor, it resides at the bottom of the screen. That makes the obligatory pixelhunting a very, very unpleasant experience.
